New publication about repetitive strain injury - recovery

This is Jenny's story. In 1995 Jenny was diagnosed with a chronic form of repetitive strain injury which left her life in pieces. This is an inspirational tale of how Jenny and her family coped with everyday life after her diagnosis, and how Jenny battled through adversity and has managed to heal herself of her condition.

Jenny's story will inspire anyone who lives with a long term chronic health condition and will also give employers a better understanding of the consequences of work induced injuries. Jenny is a woman to be admired, not only has she fought her own disability and won, she has also spread awareness of repetitive strain injuries in the work place throughout the United Kingdom.
